NJ Zone 6 Planting Guide

Complete NJ Zone 6 Organic Garden Planting Guide – Available for Easy Download Now

- Are you a new or new-ish gardener who becomes slightly confused by the planting instructions found on the back of seed packets?
- Would you love a simply organized planting calendar and set of guidelines to help you understand which veggies and herbs to plant at which times during the growing season?

For example, suppose you wondered what to plant in NJ zone 6 during the month of March. If you had the guide, you could flip to the March planting page for our zone.

Or, if you had specific veggies in mind but didn't know when or how often to plant. You could look up, say, beets, and find out that beets can take 2 months to mature from seed and can grow in successive plantings 3 weeks apart until temperatures reach 80 degrees.

Does gardening info confuse you? For example, if they say "30 days to maturity" does that mean from the time you plant seeds, or from the time the young plants are transplanted?

These, and many more newbie gardener questions will be cleared up right here!
